

The Lixxards

The Lixxards were fearsome creatures that existed for a short period around 750 years before Christ. They were tremendously big and vicious creatures that threatened humanity. Lixxards were described as half lizard, half scorpion. The Lixxards had the ability to release a terrifying scream or a sting upon its foes to cause them to die after suffering a moment of excruciating pain, The Lixxards wanted to exterminate humanity for an unknown reason. The most likely reason is that the intelligent Lixxards noticed how other animals were treated, and they possibly then started fighting for their freedom.

Where the Lixxards originate from is also unknown. There is only one truth about their existence. There were twenty of them. This was discovered by a young soldier that had fought the Lixxards. He noticed that double xx formed the number twenty. Surprisingly, many men died in the battle against the Lixxards. After they had been exterminated, they came to be the symbol of animal rights and that we should treat them respectfully. If we don't, history may repeat itself when another percipient creature emerges.
